Immediately varietal with aromas of ripe blackberry and dark plum, there's scents of bell-pepper and smoky wood, clove and tobacco, violets and bark soil. Overall - quite intense with a core of fruit then wood. On the palate - full, rich and concentrated with flavours of dark berries and iron-sand, toasty wood and smoke. Dry with firm tannins and plenty of acidity - both suggesting this wine needs decanting and should be served with food. Best drinking from 2022 through 2030.

"Very good release. It tastes authentically of Margaret River and of cabernet. It's curranty, gravelly, smoothskinned and fresh. There's a creaminess to its texture and a gum leaf lift to its aromatics. It's a wine that really improves as it rests in the glass, not that each glass lasts too long. There's value in spades to be had here."
