

EDINBURGH GIN SEASIDE

A REMARKABLE GIN FROM THE BRACING WATERS AND SHORELINE OF SCOTLAND.

Edinburgh Seaside Gin encapsulates the wonder of the shoreline near Edinburgh. This softly sweet, mineralistic London Dry uses botanicals that were foraged on beaches around Edinburgh. Bladderwrack seaweed, scurvygrass and ground ivy make this gin reminiscent of a bracing walk on a Scottish beach.

Launched in 2015, Seaside was the result of a collaboration with the team at the International Centre for Brewing & Distilling at Herriot Watt University in Edinburgh – bringing together the expertise of our Head Distiller while helping nurture a new generation of gin innovators.

The culmination of this project is an extraordinary gin that has a fresh sweetness on the nose, characterised by soft salinity and herbaceous, grassy notes on the palate, followed by a clean finish.

Pair with tonic or shake as a martini... we enjoy ours with a slice of grapefruit or with a sprig of crisp, salty samphire.

- Botanicals found on, and inspired by, the natural wonder of local beaches on the East coast of Scotland
- Made in partnership with Heriot Watt University and their world-renowned International Centre for Brewing and Distilling
- Edinburgh Gin's top selling London Dry internationally.

"The distillation team and I worked closely with Heriot Watt University's Centre for Brewing & Distillation to craft Edinburgh Gin Seaside. As a graduate from the University's Brewing & Distillation course this was a project that was close to my heart."

The lightest gin in the London Dry range. The three seaside botanicals create a fresh and savoury flavour with a hint of sweetness. A combination of grassy notes and minerality compliment the piney Italian juniper to make a remarkable, stand out gin. As our top selling London Dry in international markets, we're not the only ones to think so."

FLAVOUR STORY AND TASTING NOTES

The three signature botanicals in this gin bring the coast around Edinburgh to life.

Bladderwrack seaweed is high in residual sugar and adds a sweetness to the nose and palate, bringing with it the scent of sea air. Scurvy grass carries a slight spice and salinity. Ground ivy adds fresh, summery grass notes to the finish.

A unique and inspired gin that stimulates the senses and transports you to the shoreline around Edinburgh. Perfect all year round, just like Scotland's beaches.
