Hickory smoke with a hint of vanilla and hot pine sauna on the nose with gorse, coconut all on the nose. The palate has smoked back bacon, fried tatty scone, buttery notes and eggy bread. Noisette on the finish with more hickory smoke. Spelt bread.

Enticing nose with trickle of peat smoke, rich spice, cloves and touch of aniseed. Well weighted entry with deep malty sweetness. Dark brown sugar and toffee give rich and smooth flow. Mellow and balanced. Gentle smoke in long finish.

WINE ENTHUSIAST

Kara Newman, December 2013

89 Points

This golden Scotch from the Isle of Mull offers smoky, toasty aromas. On the palate, a light coating of peat is edged with a saline note and touches of anise and honey. The smoky notes grow bolder with repeated sips.

90-95 Points

I love the intensely malty and enticingly peaty opening aroma that emits pungent notes of filled ashtray, soot, sea breeze and kippers. Palate entry is dry initially then rapidly turns off-dry and salty; at midpalate, the taste profile explodes on the tongue in flavors of salted peanut, smoked fish, paraffin, light toffee and salted butter.
