

Gewürztraminer

2019

18.5/20

Candice Chow | Raymond Chan Wine Reviews

January 2021

Bright, pale yellow with a green hue and some depth, faintly lighter on edge. The nose is softly aromatic, fragrances of white blossoms, melded with lychees, citrus and white spice, underlying discreet barrel flint. Off-dry, medium-bodied, lychee, pear puree intermix rosewater and white rose petals, along with ginger, nutmeg linger on the finish. An oily, beeswax mouthfeel and pure fruit and floral expression contribute to the palate's weight and substance. Varietal characters are expressive and lingering, enriched by older barrel-fermentation details. This is an off-dry, textural Gewurztraminer shines with varietal characters and barrel-fermented complexities.

94 POINTS

Nick Stock | jameessuckling.com

August 2019

This has such intensity and ripeness. Pegasus Bay really knows how to deliver aromatic white in full regalia. The lychee and sweet rose perfume is heady and alluring, as is the sweetly fleshy and succulent palate.

96 POINTS

Sam Kim | Wine Orbit

March 2021

Upfront and fabulously perfumed, showing pineapple, lychee, Turkish Delight, dried flower and mixed spice aromas on the nose. It's sumptuous and plush on the palate, exhibiting creamy mouthfeel and mellow acidity, leading to a wonderfully long gratifying finish.

5 STARS

Michael Cooper | Winestate Magazine

May 2021

Full of personality, this softly mouthfilling wine was fermented and matured for six months in old oak puncheons. Light lemon/green, it is perfumed, sturdy and rich, with deep lychee, pear and spice flavours, gentle sweetness, a slightly oily texture and good complexity and harmony.

93 POINTS

Cameron Douglas MS | camerondouglasms.com

January 2021

Best to leave the wine in glass for two minutes before nosing please - swirl several times and then absorb the bouquet. Aromas and flavours of roses and wild flowers, spiced orchard and tropical fruits, honeysuckle and citrus peel. Delicious on the palate with flavours of spices and dried herbs, citrus and tropical fruits, local red apples and honeysuckle. No mistaking the variety and its lush satin texture. Medium acidity with a youthful prickle and very engaging.